

McNeese State University
Assistant Professor of Psychology
Department of Psychology
College of Nursing and Health Professions

McNeese State University located in Lake Charles, Louisiana invites qualified applicants and nominations for two (2) full-time, 9-month, tenure-track (contingent upon completion of terminal degree), unclassified positions in the Department of Psychology, Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) Concentration, in the College of Nursing and Health Professions. These appointments begin in August 2021.

Position Description and Responsibilities:

The Department of Psychology invites candidates with a Ph.D. in Psychology or related field with interest and training in applied behavior analysis. The successful candidates will join a collegial department that values teaching, evidence-based practice, and research.

Responsibilities will include, but are not limited to: teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, supervision of students enrolled in our Association for Behavior Analysis International (ABAI) accredited master's concentration in ABA, university and community service, advising, and research/scholarship. The Assistant Professors will work closely with students and faculty in the Department of Psychology. Primary duties are centered around teaching and involvement in our ABA graduate concentration. Opportunities for publication quality research and collaboration with our skilled clinical staff are also available within the program via our on-site ABA clinic. The successful candidates are expected to behave in accordance with the overall mission and philosophy of our University and graduate program.

Our graduate program in ABA is currently nationally accredited by ABAI with an approved Verified Course Sequence (VCS). The department is committed to the ongoing ABAI accreditation of the master's concentration in ABA.
